

Meet CTY Greece

The Center for Talented Youth (CTY) was founded back in 1979 by the world famous Johns Hopkins University in the United States, with the purpose to identify and cultivate exceptionally bright young students with enthusiasm for academic challenges.

CTY Greece first opened its doors in 2013, the result of the strategic partnership between Johns Hopkins University and Anatolia College, thanks to the founding donation from the Stavros Niarchos Foundation. Today, CTY Greece at Anatolia College offers online courses, day and weekend programs, as well as a summer residential program.

This year, through the generous sponsorship of Lidl Cyprus, the program extends to Cyprus, giving talented Cypriot students the opportunity to join the programme.

On Sunday, December 6th, 2015 at 10:30, at The English School of Nicosia, you will have the opportunity to familiarize yourself with a selection of CTY Greece courses which cover a wide range of sciences, and learn more about the scholarships made available by Lidl Cyprus for the CTY Greece summer program.

Enjoy 5 hours filled with experiments and fun activities and delve into the wonderful world of science and knowledge!
